“Whoever is careless with the truth in small matters cannot be trusted with important matters”
— Albert Einstein

“I’m finding that the biggest bunch of liars I know are perspective jurors” — Garth Dano

Really? Our jury pools are a “bunch of liars?” These are the words of a man whose reckless patterns endanger public safety.

Don’t be fooled. Be smart. Read on.

Finally the trial judge found that there was "not credible evidence" that Dano had paid any child support and ordered back child support.

While married he fathered 2 children with a girlfriend in Oregon. Those children were on public assistance as Dano had paid child support in cash. If he paid them then why did he pay? And if he paid them then why did he resist admitting they were his?

First he denied he was the father, but blood tests proved he was. Then he testified he had paid child support in cash. If he thought the children weren't his then why did he pay?
