Re: Incident Notification

Dear Attorney General Ferguson:

We are writing on behalf of our client, Sage Advisors, LLC (“Sage”) to notify you of a security incident involving Washington residents.¹

On April 9, 2019, Sage’s ongoing investigation into a phishing email incident determined that an unauthorized person had obtained access to an email account belonging to a Sage employee. Upon first learning of the potential incident on March 26, 2019, Sage secured the employee’s email account, launched an investigation to determine the nature and scope of the incident, and engaged a computer security firm to assist. The investigation determined that an unauthorized person accessed the account between February 12 and March 26, 2019. Due to the nature of the unauthorized access to the account, Sage was unable to determine which specific emails and attachments, if any, may have been viewed by the unauthorized individual. After a thorough investigation, which included a review of access logs and manual review of emails and attachments for personal information, Sage determined on May 7, 2019, that the accounts accessed by the unauthorized individual contained personal information, including the names, Social Security numbers, drivers’ license numbers, financial account information, and payment card information of 1,026 Washington residents.

¹ Today, May 9, 2019, we are also providing notice to the Washington State Office of the Insurance Commissioner.

Sage will also establish a dedicated call center where all individuals may obtain more information regarding the incident.

Sage is taking steps to further protect personal information, including implementing additional procedures to further expand and strengthen its security processes and providing continued education and training to its employees.

Please do not hesitate to contact me if you have any questions regarding this matter.

Sage Advisors, LLC (“Sage”) recognizes the importance of protecting the privacy and security of personal information. Regrettably, we are writing to inform you that we recently identified and addressed a security incident that may have involved some of that information. This notice describes the incident, outlines the measures we have taken in response, and advises you on steps that you can take to further protect your information.

On April 9, 2019, our ongoing investigation into a phishing email incident determined that an unauthorized person had obtained access to an email account belonging to a Sage employee. Upon first learning of the incident, we secured the employee’s email account, launched an investigation to determine the nature and scope of the incident, and engaged a computer security firm to assist. The investigation determined that an unauthorized person accessed the account between February 12 and March 26, 2019. Due to the nature of the unauthorized access to the account, we were unable to determine which specific emails and attachments, if any, may have been viewed by the unauthorized individual. We therefore undertook a comprehensive analysis of the emails and attachments in the account, and determined on [date], that an email or an attachment contained your << variable data>>.

Although we have no indication that your information has been accessed or misused in any way, out of an abundance of caution, we wanted to advise you of this incident and assure you that we take this very seriously. Fraud Alerts: There are two types of fraud alerts you can place on your credit report to put your creditors on notice that you may be a victim of fraud—an initial alert and an extended alert. You may ask that an initial fraud alert be placed on your credit report if you suspect you have been, or are about to be, a victim of identity theft. An initial fraud alert stays on your credit report for at least 90 days. You may have an extended alert placed on your credit report if you have already been a victim of identity theft with the appropriate documentary proof. An extended fraud alert stays on your credit report for seven years. You can place a fraud alert on your credit report by contacting any of the three national credit reporting agencies.

Credit Freezes: You have the right to put a credit freeze, also known as a security freeze, on your credit file, free of charge, so that no new credit can be opened in your name without the use of a PIN number that is issued to you when you initiate a freeze. A security freeze is designed to prevent potential credit grantors from accessing your credit report without your consent. If you place a security freeze, potential creditors and other third parties will not be able to get access to your credit report unless you temporarily lift the freeze. Therefore, using a security freeze may delay your ability to obtain credit.

There is no fee to place or lift a security freeze. Unlike a fraud alert, you must separately place a security freeze on your credit file at each credit reporting company. For information and instructions to place a security freeze, contact each of the credit reporting agencies at the addresses below:

Experian Security Freeze, PO Box 9554, Allen, TX 75013, www.experian.com
TransUnion Security Freeze, PO Box 2000, Chester, PA 19016, www.transunion.com
Equifax Security Freeze, PO Box 105788, Atlanta, GA 30348, www.equifax.com

To request a security freeze, you will need to provide the following information:

1. Your full name (including middle initial as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.)

2. Social Security number
3. Date of birth
4. If you have moved in the past five years, provide the addresses where you have lived over the prior five years
5. Proof of current address such as a current utility bill or telephone bill
6. A legible photocopy of a government issued identification card (state driver's license or ID card, military identification, etc.)
7. If you are a victim of identity theft, include a copy of the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft

The credit reporting agencies have one business day after receiving your request by toll-free telephone or secure electronic means, or three business days after receiving your request by mail, to place a security freeze on your credit report. The credit bureaus must also send written confirmation to you within five business days and provide you with a unique personal identification number (“PIN”) or password or both that can be used by you to authorize the removal or lifting of the security freeze.

To lift the security freeze in order to allow a specific entity or individual access to your credit report, or to lift a security freeze for a specified period of time, you must submit a request through a toll-free telephone number, a secure electronic means maintained by a credit reporting agency, or by sending a written request via regular, certified, or overnight mail to the credit reporting agencies and include proper identification (name, address, and Social Security number) and the PIN number or password provided to you when you placed the security freeze as well as the identity of those entities or individuals you would like to receive your credit report or the specific period of time you want the credit report available. The credit reporting agencies have one business day after receiving your request by toll-free telephone or secure electronic means, or three business days after receiving your request by mail, to lift the security freeze for those identified entities or for the specified period of time.

To remove the security freeze, you must submit a request through a toll-free telephone number, a secure electronic means maintained by a credit reporting agency, or by sending a written request via regular, certified, or overnight mail to each of the three credit bureaus and include proper identification (name, address, and Social Security number) and the PIN number or password provided to you when you placed the security freeze. The credit bureaus have one business day after receiving your request by toll-free telephone or secure electronic means, or three business days after receiving your request by mail, to remove the security freeze.

Fair Credit Reporting Act: You also have rights under the federal Fair Credit Reporting Act, which promotes the accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of consumer reporting agencies. The FTC has published a list of the primary rights created by the FCRA (<https://www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/pdf-0096-fair-credit-reporting-act.pdf>), and that article refers individuals seeking more information to visit www.ftc.gov/credit. The FTC’s list of FCRA rights includes:

- You have the right to receive a copy of your credit report. The copy of your report must contain all the information in your file at the time of your request.
- Each of the nationwide credit reporting companies – Experian, TransUnion and Equifax – is required to provide you with a free copy of your credit report, at your request, once every 12 months.
- You are also entitled to a free report if a company takes adverse action against you, like denying your application for credit, insurance, or employment, and you ask for your report within 60 days of receiving notice of the action. The notice will give you the name, address, and phone number of the credit reporting company. You’re also entitled to one free report a year if you’re unemployed and plan to look for a job within 60 days; if you’re on welfare; or if your report is inaccurate because of fraud, including identity theft.
- You have the right to ask for a credit score.
- You have the right to dispute incomplete or inaccurate information.
- Consumer reporting agencies must correct or delete inaccurate, incomplete, or unverifiable information.
- Consumer reporting agencies may not report outdated negative information.
- Access to your file is limited. And you must give your consent for reports to be provided to employers.
- You may limit “prescreened” offers of credit and insurance you get based on information in your credit report.
- You may seek damages from violators.
- Identity theft victims and active duty military personnel have additional rights.
